Dear Mr. Jensen:

Re: Reclamation Plan, B & J Placer Claims, M/015/041, Emery County, Utah

The Division has been receiving correspondence, discussing the expansion of your San Rafael gypsum quarry. Currently, the operation is under five acres. The Division will need plans which specifically address the acreage you plan to disturb and reclaim each year. This is particularly important if you plan to keep the disturbance at or under five acres.

I am told that you must bond the site now, as a result of the BLM's designation of ACEC for the area in which your mine is located. To keep bonding costs at a minimum, you will want to keep your disturbed acreage to a minimum. Contemporaneous reclamation (timely partial reclamation) will be an important component of your plan. You will need to formalize your reclamation sequence in your plan, by describing your annual reclamation plans to us, and the approximate amount of acreage which will be affected by mining and reclamation each year.

Please contact me if you have questions regarding this letter.

Sincerely,

Holland Shepherd
Senior Reclamation Specialist
